EDITORIAL

Let's have a party tonight, and tomorrow night, and the night after that, andThis year is the big year. We've really made it! We've done it! We're seniors. Let's celebrate! It's unbelievable; we're actually thru. Genuine, real, live, mighty, mighty Seniors! How does that grab you?

Being a senior strikes most of us as one of the best actualities anyone could think of. But--how are we going to make the most of it? What will having a party every night accomplish in accordance with our plans after we are through being mighty seniors and the time comes to leave the parental nest, with all its security, and make decisions about the future? We soon come to realize that life is not just one big party.

During the fourth year of secondary education, it's high time to start laying the blueprints for the future. Decisions are to be made as to the "what" and the "who" of the future.

Is this "what" a higher education concluding in a specific field of work that arouses special interests that have been kept in mind over the years of schooling? Preparations must now be made concerning courses to be taken, research to be done which may prove helpful, financial hang-ups to be solved, etc.

Is this "what" possibly a job not involving the need for a higher education? If this is the case, even greater stress must be laid, not onl7 on the senior year but all four years of high school. Is there a probability of going into a corporation with an older member of the family or a friend, such as on a farm, or into a local business? Courses should be taken that will be beneficial to the management of such an enterprise.

Then comes the question of "WHO" is included in the blueprint of life. All too often, people tend to get involved in binding personal relationships, and find to their anxiety that these ties are painfully broken. They realize that a stance must first be taken as to what vocation and preparation is needed for the future.

Is life just one big party? No. We are mighty seniors, but let's keep that in mind in a more serious of thinking. Let's really make the most of this last year!

*Come on! Come all!
To the dance tonight.*

TEACHERS

Miss Pagel

If you're wondering who the 5'3" blue eyed blonde walking around Corsica Public this year is, we want to inform you that it's not a new girl in school but the new English, speech, and declam instructor, -- Miss Pamela Pagel.

She is a native of Mitchell and attended Mitchell High, then went to D.W.U. She has one brother and one sister.

Dancing is one of her favorite pastime and she wonders why there isn't a danve after the football games. She also want to know if anyone has a horse, she could ride on weekends. She has no favorite sport but enjoys them all.

As for her dislikes, she hasn't any specific ones; she says that's why she is so easy to get along with.

Miss Pagel wants more boys out for declam, but other than that, she wouldn't change anything.

She thinks Corsica Public is a great place so far. Let's hope nothing happens to change her mind.

Mr. Engelhorn

Robert Engelhorn was born and raised in Huron, S. D. He attended college at Southern State College and majored in biology.

He is married, and has no children. Before coming to teach at Corsica High, Mr. Engelhorn was a rancher. His favorite hobbies are folk music and Indian relics.

When asked for comments about CHS. Mr. Engelhorn replied as follows: "It is a little mixed up yet because of all the new changes, but before long it will be a better school than it ever was before."

GRADE SCHOOL NEWS

Kindergarten

This year we have more kindergarten children than we have ever had---23!

There are 12 boys and 11 girls, eager to start their first year of school.

So far we made owls, paper chains, squirrels, and our families. We have been studying nursery rhymes, too.

We are starting to make a book of some of our favorites, and we have "Jack and Jill" and "Little Miss Muffet" already completed.

We also enjoy our music class. We have learned most of the nursery rhymes and have just started a rhythm band.

1st

Fifteen smiling faces appeared in our room on August 23rd.

We were a little disappointed when we learned that due to the late arrival of science equipment that school would not resume until the following Friday.

Our first grade are busy getting acquainted with names of our classmates, the color words and of sounds around us. We are working hard and looking forward to the time when we will not just look in books but will be able to read what they say.

We want to thank the tax payers for making it possible for us to study in such a lovely room.

Please feel free to come and visit us; we love company.

If you are too tired to go on with a certain task, just think about your worst adversary succeeding at the same job.

2nd

The second grade has 13 students this year. Jeffrey Hamburg is the only one that has not attended school here before.

The boys and girls are all glad that they can go to school in the new school.

We are reviewing work from the first grade in most of our books. For Social studies we made a flag. We learned that the flag has 50 stars and 13 stripes.

3rd & 4th

There are ten pupils in the 3rd grade and thirteen in the 4th grade. This is a total of 23 pupils.

The 4th grade is studying different homes in Social Study. They drew pictures of different homes. They are on our bulletin board.

We enjoy our new school and hope the rest do also.

Jean and Laura
4th Graders

Politicians are people who, before election, promise a car in every garage. And after election? They are busy putting up parking meters.

Teacher Interview

Mrs. Schroeder

Mrs. Helen Schroeder, the 5th and 6th grade teacher, is residing at the C.J. Menning home in Corsica. Mrs. Schroeder is married and has eight children. Her husband, Leo, is a policeman at Gerritson, S. Dak., where she taught last year. She has attended many a college but received most of her education at Wayne State College in Nebraska, and has taught for 23 years. Teaching, rock, and record collecting are among her many hobbies.

She says she enjoys teaching in our new school, but it is quite different, as she is used to teaching junior high.

5th & 6th

There are 27 pupils in the 5th and 6th grade room. 15 of these are 5th grade; one of these, Laura Vanden Hoek, is new to this school.

11 are 6th grade. In this group are 3 new pupils: Kent Fisher, Brad Hamburg, and Curt Mullenburg.

We held our Y.C.L. organization meeting, Mon. Sept. 9. Officers for the first semester are: Pres. Mike Eggers, V. Pres. Scott Beukelman, Sec. Laura Vanden Hoek, and Treas. Alan Herrig.

7th & 8th

Twenty students have registered for the 7th grade and thirteen for the 8th grade.
